Church Saint Gilles - Saint Loup

The church of Saint Gilles is representative of the Norman medieval architecture ; the church, the cemetery are moreover registered in the additional inventory of sites since 22th of November 1932.

The church of Champignolles consist of two beams rectangular uneven in width and height. The construction of blocking on « silex » and « grison » goes back up in XIII century. At the beginning of XVI century, we added to the oriental extremity of the nave, in the south a chapel square on « silex ». This pine nut is crowned with a circular jewel and an « antefixe » cross decorated with festoon Gothic.

The coachman squared is skeleton, recovers of « essentes » is the octogonal arrow. The hall is constituted in decorated with moulding sand pits dates of XVI century.

The Forest

To go to you to borrow a road of 3 kilometres of forest situated on the community of Fidelaire.

They are different way to cross roads in forest. It si for each the opportunity to discover the landscape, to examine a tree or to observe animals in their natural environment or simply to stroll the nose in the wind.

But it's always the opportunity to be amazed, to learn and to meet the others walkers or de professionals of forest : administrator, lumberjack,....and hunter.

The nature is fragile, it is imperative to respect it.

The species which we can find in this forest are : fir trees, briches and oaks....

The Risle

The Risle is a river in running waters of 145 kilometres, which sets naiss in Planche (61) and throws it self into the estuary of Seine in Berville-sur-mer (27). It penetrates in « Eure » in front of Saint Martin d'Ecublai (61) and cross bar Rugles to go back up towards the north.

In Champignolles, it describe wide meanders and seems to take all its time. The numerous migratory birds come to rest on its banks before taking back their flight towards countries more distant. Its wide green valley, its apple trees in flower in spring, its houses with timber framing and silex complete the dream decorations of this attractive Norman village.
